

Aluminum producer announces plans to locate cable plant

The Alcan Cable Company, a division of Alcan Aluminum Corporation, announced Tuesday plans to take over the former Eljer Plumbing ware facility in Bay St. Louis for the manufacture of its own electric cable, with initial production scheduled for sometime in mid-1976.

The Montreal-based industry, which is the world's largest producer of aluminum, will employ between 65-70 persons with an annual payroll of $600,000. The company also announced an option on an adjacent 13-acre tract for possible expansion later.

The new industrial facility was announced at a noon luncheon attended by Alcan officials, local dignitaries and Hancock Bank representatives who were involved in bringing the new industry to Bay St. Louis.

Alcan president Jack Robinson of Atlanta said that the major consideration of the company's decision to locate in Bay St. Louis was logistics.

"We were told," Anderson said, "that our next plant had to be located within a 100 mile radius of Columbia, Miss. purely for reasons of economics and freight costs."

Anderson said that the company expected to have to build a new plant and was pleasantly surprised to find the Eljer Plant available in Bay St. Louis, a plant which just happened to be vacant and suited to the size and shape required for cable production.

Anderson said that Alcan would assume the costs of all renovation work at the Eljer plant, estimated to run $200,000, and would take over general obligation bonds which were issued by the city and will run until 1987.

Anderson said that the company would have a project manager on the site in 10 days and that renovation work would commence immediately followed by installation of equipment early next year.

Anderson credited friends within the Mississippi Power Company with making the Bay St. Louis location known to the company.

Waveland approves school

Waveland residents approved the plan for a separation from the Bay-Waveland School District Saturday by an overwhelming six-to-one majority. The vote 839 to 134 will give the board of aldermen the command to set up a separate school district for Waveland alone.

A combination junior high and high school will begin operating in the present Waveland Elementary school next September 1976. The board has designated the school building on Coleman Avenue as the site for the Elementary School. Repairs on the building will cost about $100,000 and will not be completed until September of 1976.

Mayor John Longo Jr. was elated by

"We are not big employers in terms of numbers compared with dollars invested," Anderson said, "but I believe that in these times we are involved in one of the most critical problems confronting this nation."

Anderson said he felt that instead of restricting power companies from rate increases which prohibit necessary capital for growth, that power companies should be free to expand and utilize the natural resources that are abundant in this country — coal and uranium ore.

the large majority in favor of the separation and pledged that he and the board would begin immediately to effect the separation from the Bay-Waveland district. The resolution for withdrawal would be presented to the Bay-Waveland School Board at the Jan. 22 meeting, he said.

Longo described this vote as one more step in the process of making Waveland independent of other communities in Hancock county. It was not necessary for the board of aldermen to put the school district separation to a public vote, but the mayor chose to seek a mandate from the people for setting up independent Waveland schools. Longo has promised that the separate school system will not mean a tax increase for the residents of Waveland.

Members of the Alcan Aluminum family discuss prospects of the new Bay St. Louis plant of Alcan Cable which was announced Tuesday at a luncheon held for company officials, local dignitaries and Hancock Bank officials at Bay-Waveland Yacht Club. Second from right is Alcan Cable president Jack Robinson. The company intends to renovate the Eljer Plumbing Company in Bay St. Louis and to commence operations in early 1976.

DuPont permits: one approved, one delayed

The DuPont Company Tuesday received the go-ahead from one state agency. But another agency, the Mississippi Marine Resources Council, delayed granting its permit to DuPont and instead requested additional information concerning the effect, the proposed pigments plant would have on the flora and fauna in and around the Bay of St. Louis.

The Mississippi Marine Resources Council delayed issuing its permit Tuesday and will request DuPont and the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory (GCRL) to show what effect the plant's discharges will have on the animal and plant life.

GCRL is the organization commissioned by DuPont to do a study of the DuPont plant's effect on the environment.

The Executive Director of the Mississippi Air and Water Pollution Control Commission (MAWPPCC) Glen Wood, said Tuesday that the board had voted 4-0 in favor of granting DuPont the permit to locate its titanium-dioxide plant north of the Bay of St. Louis. One council member was absent. Wood said that the board's approval will now be forwarded to the Environmental Protection Agency Region IV in Atlanta. The EPA's approval of the board's permit, said Wood, should come inside of ten days.

The MAWPPCC permit would govern the plant's daily discharge of over two million gallons of diluted neutral salts into the Bay of St. Louis. The permit would also grant DuPont permission to construct a deep-well injection system for the plant's highly poisonous wastes such as mercury, arsenic, cyanide, and large quantities of iron chlorides.

Paul Minor, attorney for Save the Bay, Inc., group of bay area property owners, said Wednesday that he plans to appeal MAWPPCC's permit to the EPA in Atlanta. Minor said that the group was objecting to the MAWPPCC's approval on several grounds. He claims that there was not sufficient data for the MAWPPCC to grant an approval.

Echo Poll

Large majority favor DuPont

More than three out of every four persons in Pass Christian who responded in a random-selection telephone poll conducted by the Echo this week said that they favored the locating of DuPont's titanium-dioxide plant in DeLisle.

Out of the 40 persons interviewed, 31 said they had no objections or reservations concerning the location of the plant. Only one person expressed objections, and two said that they had reservations concerning the plant's ability to operate without polluting the Bay of St. Louis.

The questioning was restricted to persons living in Pass Christian and DeLisle.

Most of those responding said that they favored DuPont locating in Minor said that the commission did not conduct a private study and based all its conclusions on the two-day Gulf Coast Research Laboratory (GCRL) study. The GCRL study, said Minor, should not be the only one made because it was commissioned by DuPont.

Minor said that the group also opposed the commission's permit because of insufficient notice of the public hearing. "The public hearing," he said, "is the only process where the public has a chance to be heard on the matter." When asked what the group would do if the EPA turned down the Save the Bay request, Minor said, they would then go to court to block the permit.

Finally, William Sheehy, public affairs manager of DuPont in Wilmington, Delaware, answered reports that the company might not

Lott balancing on tightrope

U.S. Congressman Trent Lott said Friday that he favored something in between "total wilderness designation" and partial development of Petit Bois and Horn Island in the Mississippi Sound.

Speaking before a gathering of Bicentennial celebrants in Pass Christian, Lott said that he had met with members of the National Park Service to discuss the future of the two islands which have become the subject of much controversy since a National Park Service public hearing last Dec. 2 to consider partial development of the two islands. The Park Service had proposed developing approximately 11 percent of the islands for public use and recreation.

In a letter to the December 2 public hearing in Biloxi on the islands controversy, Lott had said that he wanted to make the islands accessible to the general public. Friday, however, Lott said that the Park Service proposal should be revised to include more land under the wilderness designation.

Asked if he now favored the Citizens Wilderness Proposal, Lott said that he had studied both proposals and found himself between the two. He ended by saying, "That may sound like a political answer."

The Citizens Wilderness Proposal, which calls for total wilderness designation for both islands, was favored by a large majority of those expressing an opinion. However, since Lott represents the U.S. Congressional district immediately affected by the Park Service proposal and since Lott's predecessor William Colmer was the man most instrumental in obtaining the islands in the Gulf Islands National Seashore for the Park Service, many believe Lott's voice on the matter will carry much weight when the final proposal is introduced on the floor of Congress.

January Court opens

The January term of the Hancock County Circuit Court opened Monday with Judge Leslie B. Grant presiding. Members of the January grand jury were sworn in and empaneled by Judge Grant at 10:25 a.m. Louis Moreau was named jury foreman and Peter Noto was pronounced bailiff.

The January term of court is relatively light compared with past terms of 1974.

Cases scheduled for next week include O. Odum on Tuesday Jan. 21 on charges of armed robbery; Jimmy D. Smith on Thursday on charges of armed robbery; and Wilbur J. Haas also set for Thursday on two counts of receiving stolen property.

A number of trials are also set for possession of controlled substances. They include Rebecca D. Campbell and William Earl Pursley on Wednesday; Donald H. Vincent on Friday; and Norman Polndexter for sale of a controlled substance on Wednesday.

limitations on the use of military force in the Mid-East, Lott said. "There are conditions," he conceded, when military force might be considered, but only if the U.S. was "in the final stages of a monetary crisis."

President Ford was quoted by "Time" magazine Sunday as saying military force "would not be ruled out" if the free world or the industrialized world would be strangled.

Lott favors tax cut, opposes military aid

By David Pierson
Long Beach Bureau

U.S. Congressman Trent Lott said Friday that he favors a small tax cut and that he opposes an additional gas tax to cut down on gasoline consumption. Lott also said that he opposes an increase in military aid to Vietnam and that he would favor the use of force in the Middle East only if the U.S. was "in the final stages of a monetary crisis."

"Answering a wide-range of questions after his presentation of the bicentennial flag to Pass Christian Mayor Steve Saucier, Lott also said that he does not favor the present Park Service proposal but that he expects there will be some changes when the Park Service makes its final recommendations. Lott did not, however, endorse the alternate Citizens Wilderness Proposal.

Saying that he was leaning toward a tax cut although he was "leary of a tax decrease," Lott described a $30 billion tax cut as being too much. "Industry and business need to expand again," Lott said, and a tax rebate would put more money back into the economy to do this. "But, he added, 'what would cure the nation's recession troubles' would also fuel the inflation fire."

"There is no way to live with inflation," he said, "but we can deal with recession." Lott said he would favor a tax cut of about $10 billion.

"Tax is not the way to conservation," Lott said when asked if he favored an additional gas tax to cut down consumption. Voluntary conservation is not working, he admitted, but there are two other methods that should be tried first.

"An orderly allocation program," Lott says is the first step that should be tried to reduce consumption. If that fails, Lott said, then Congress should vote for some kind of gas rationing. Only if rationing fails to discourage consumption would he favor "as a last resort" a gas tax.

Shifting his attention to international affairs, Lott said that he "did not want America to turn its back on a country that's fighting for its freedom," but he added, "we should not become involved in Vietnam and Cambodia."

"He said that he would oppose sending any troops back into Southeast Asia and that he would look with a 'jaundiced eye' on any proposals calling for an increase of our present aid to Vietnam. "One of the cardinal rules in modern warfare," said Lott, "is don't become involved in a land war in Southeast Asia."

When asked about Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's remarks that the U.S. might use military force if the Arabs threatened to upset the world monetary system, Lott said that the press had overplayed Kissinger's comments. Lott termed Kissinger's statement "a mistake" and added that Kissinger "probably chose the wrong words."

"Kissinger placed 'strict ville train derailed North of Ansley crossing around 7:30 p.m. Monday. The tank car containing the chemical began leaking into the marsh near the track. It is impossible to determine at the present time the cause of the derailment because of the danger of the leak.

The chemical, although not explosive is described as being highly combustible. Deputy Sheriff Leo Woods with assistance from the Volunteer Fire Department notified the residents of a relatively small area to the east of the railroad tracks that they must evacuate because of the fumes. Sheriff Sylvan Ladner, who had been in Lakeshore to investigate, said that the fumes were very noticeable and that their presence caused an uncomfortable drying sensation to exposed skin such as the face and hands.

"The cold air and the lack of winds that night were good for us," said Sheriff Ladner, "because the evacuation didn't affect a larger area in Lakeshore."

The current L&N mishap is the second such incident in only two months. Railroad superintendents were on the scene Tuesday, but there will be no investigation of the cause until the immediate problem of the chemical leak is solved.

Board designs CD policy

The Hancock County School Board opened in controversy again this week, this time apparently because of ill feelings between superintendent of education and several board members over past areas of cooperation between the two. Newly elected Board Chairman Monvel Cuevas expressed a desire that the board members could forget past differences and make a pledge to work together this year.

"We don't call these meetings to have personal arguments," he said. "I'd like to ask that we keep personal business out of the meeting."

The major business conducted by the board Tuesday was a unanimous vote requiring all principals to conduct periodic fire and storm drills as required by law because of the recent threat of tornadoes in Mississippi. Some board members expressed a concern that in the event of a tornado that the schools may not be dismissed soon enough to provide for the children's safety unless a coordinated plan was developed.

"We must have a plan to dismiss the schools," said Joseph Gex, board attorney. "If we leave it up to the principals, all of the schools would dismiss at different times. I feel it is a good idea to dismiss the schools, but it should be done at the recommendation of Civil Defense only."

The board voted that Superintendent McCarty would coordinate the dismissal of the schools on the recommendation of Civil Defense if the threat of tornado arises. A letter will be sent to all principals in Hancock County advising them of the dismissal procedure and directing them to hold fire and storm drills in accordance with state law. The board also recom-

Early settlers got real values

By David Pierson
Long Beach Bureau
"Chimneys," "Rosalie," and "Scott's Station" were three names for one of the youngest cities on the Gulf Coast — Long Beach. Authority for this interesting fact was M. James Stevens, the vice-president of the Mississippi Coast Historical and Genealogical Society and former board member of the Mississippi Historical Society. Speaking to the Long Beach

Civitan Club at its January 6 regular monthly dinner meeting, Stevens said that although Long Beach is celebrating its 70th birthday this year, people lived in the area as long as 250 years ago.

Stevens, a former president of the Mississippi Innkeepers Association and the Gulfport Chamber of Commerce, was instrumental in the establishment of the Gulf Islands National Seashore and in the preservation and restoration of Fort Massachusetts.

Stevens said that first mayor of Long Beach was J. N. Whitten (who took office on August 5, 1905). The town's first clerk was J. D. Prados, and Ed Klein was the town's first marshal and tax collector. The first aldermen for Long Beach were William Dair, Charles Kohler, John Dericourt, Archie Smith, and Ed Sugden.

Among the other "firsts" enumerated by Stevens were the following: J. I. Ballenger was the town's first attorney and judge. The American flag was first raised in the city in 1811. The first railroad built through the area in 1870 ran from Mobile to New Orleans. This traffic route opened the area to all types of farming, commerce, and shipping of lumber.

The town's first library was opened in 1890 by Garland Ferguson on Jeff Davis Avenue. Ferguson was also the library's leading contributor; he donated 250 volumes to the city.

Stevens then briefly summarized the history of Long Beach: In the 1880's William Quarles started one of the early stores and a school in his house on Jeff Davis Avenue. In the 1890's truck farming flourished and Long Beach became known as the radish capital of the country. Although the town was officially named Long Beach in 1880, it was not incorporated until 1905.

The best farm land sold for around five dollars an acre; Stevens said, and land along the water front sold for two dollars a front foot.

In the 1930's strawberries became the big money crop in the area. However, because of the far-sightedness of the early pioneers, Stevens said, the crops became diversified and the community prospered.

The Methodists, in 1884, said Stevens, became the first to establish a church in Long Beach. Ten years later the Episcopalians started a church. In 1905, the Catholics came, followed by the Presbyterians in 1909 and the Baptists in 1910.

The first big hotel in the area, according to Stevens, was the Brown Hotel, which opened its doors in 1884. The Angel House opened in 1909. When the Hancock Bank opened in 1938 in Long Beach, the town had a population of 2,500.

Stevens said that the oldest house in Long Beach was the Quarles Cottage on East Railroad and that the first school was started in 1886.

Carnival Association announces entry dates

The Pass Christian Carnival Association wishes to announce entry forms for parade units in Pass Christian's annual Mardi Gras parade, Feb. 9 are available. The Association's Parade Committee will be pleased to mail entry forms on request. The following may be contacted at these telephone numbers: Mrs. Wayne James, 452-2165, Mrs. Hal Yockey, 452-2683, Mr. Sam Armato, 452-7530.

Mrs. Stephen DeLappe, 452-9504. The theme of the parade will be "American Inventions 1776-1975". Floats and marching units must conform to the theme in decorations and costume.

Doubloons may also be ordered from the parade committee. First entries will have the first places in the parade.

The Association also wishes to announce that its commemorative Carnival doubloons have been struck for the ninth year. As we look forward to our country's 200th birthday, we should pause and look back over the events, places and people who have contributed so greatly to our place among nations. It is fitting then that the theme of the Pass Christian Carnival Association's ball and parade would be "American Inventions 1776-1975".

The doubloon depicts this theme with a picture of a "town crier", reminiscent of Paul Revere, calling attention to 199 years of scientific and mechanical advancement and "Yankee Ingenuity". The figure is encircled by the stars and furlled strips of our flag.

Recalling the many and diverse inventions of the American mind can only lead to a clearer and deeper appreciation of our history and a greater sense of anticipation for our Bicentennial next year. On the permanent side of the doubloon is the Historical Marker, noting that Pass Christian was founded in 1699, and named for Christian L'Adnir, and the wording Pass Christian Carnival Association, Organized in 1930, Dedicated to Education, Religion, Citizenship.

These doubloons have been struck in silver oxidized, gold plated, tutone bronze and aluminum. Aluminum doubloons will be thrown from the floats in the parade, Sunday, Feb. 9, along with the usual Carnival beads and trinkets.

Anyone wishing to purchase doubloons may contact Miss Margaret Jean Kalif, 409 East Beach, Pass Christian or call 452-2803 or Mrs. F. P. Wittmann, 105 Hursey Ave., Pass Christian or call 452-2688 for information.

Waller proclaims Jaycee week

Governor William L. Waller today proclaimed Jan. 19-25 as Jaycee Week in Mississippi and asked local cities and organizations to cooperate in the observance.

He said the purpose of the week is to focus attention on young men and the work they are doing, and emphasize that the Mississippi Jaycees have done an outstanding job in the fields of individual development and community involvement.

The week celebrates the founding of the Jaycees in 1915, when Henry Giessemer saw a need for a young men's civic group and organized the first chapter in St. Louis. The movement spread so fast that in 1920, the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce was formed with 24 cities represented. The Mississippi Jaycees were formed in 1934. The name of the national organization was changed from U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce to the U.S. Jaycees in 1965 at the National convention of the young men's civic group.

Built on solid foundation of creating opportunities for leadership training through community betterment projects, the Mississippi Jaycees today, over 7,500 strong, are active in 2110 communities in Mississippi. The organization's state headquarters is located in Meridian.

Stennis Airport to open Jan. 31

Stennis International Airport Director E. Durand Bailey said Monday that runways would be open for air traffic by Jan. 31. Weather conditions and plant breakdowns forced postponement of the opening which was scheduled for Dec. 31. Final electrical work on the runway will be completed after the opening.

Phase II of the Airport Master Plan will be a 8,500 foot runway which will have high intensity lighting suitable for instrument approaches. The intensity of the lights will be controlled by the Airport management to aid the pilot in landing. The runway will also have a Visual Approach Slope Indicator which gives the pilot light signals as an aid in determining his vertical position on the final approach.

Gulf Coast Aircraft Sales has started their Flight School on a two day a week schedule until the airport becomes operational. During the interim period, Walter Anderson will be operating the Flight School and has airplanes available for the local flights. During construction the Flight School is flying from the parallel taxiway which is 2,600 ft. long and 60 ft. wide. Anderson has more than 4,000 hours to his credit, and is a single and multi-engine pilot with Instructor and Instrument Instructor Ratings.

SAR stresses What's Right in America

James H. Chenery, Vice President General, Sons of the American Revolution, of Birmingham, Alabama, in his address on Saturday evening, told Colonial Patriots and their guests they should band together to tell and keep telling what is right with this country.

"If enough of us do that we will find ourselves caught up in the political life of this country, and I hope to see the day when hereditary societies have a real impact on our lives, and Congress, the Courts, and even the Presidency," he said.

At the invitation of Oswald

M. Smith, Jr., president of the Colonial Patriots Chapter, SAR, the group met for a gourmet dinner in the Shoreline Sheraton of West Beach, Biloxi. Entertainment for the evening included the Keesler AFB Technical Training Center's All Male Chorus, under the direction of Major L. B. Starling.

Key speaker for the evening, Chenery received a standing ovation when he stressed "accentuate the positive -- eliminate the negative and don't equivocate with in-between."

The United States has become the strongest nation on earth, Chenery said, with the highest per capita income the world has ever seen, the highest standard of living man has ever dreamed of, and a government that our forefathers in their infinite wisdom gave us to live under -- one where individual freedom is paramount.

Pointing up danger signals, Chenery said: "Both the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution are full of the positive. The guide lines are there for us." Chenery said the deterioration of the French and British governments was being brought on by the desire to give their people something for nothing in a welfare state. "As for this country," Chenery declared, "we are traveling the same road as the Greeks, the Romans, the Spanish, French and British. The pursuit of pleasure, the downgrading of the Puritan Ethic which was the hallmark not only of the early Massachusetts Colony, but of all early Americans down to our fathers and mothers."

Chenery's claims of deterioration in our own society included the passing of prayers in schools, loss of respect for our flag, the falling off of the Church's place in the lives of our people, and lack of respect for honesty and truth

"even running to the highest office in our land." "These are danger signals to all of us, Chenery warned and added, "We must stop and consider the lessons of history, or this country will pass the way of other formerly strong and mighty nations."

Of mounting public debt Chenery said: "I think we should heed what Washington warned about and he quoted from our first president's Farewell Address: 'As a very important source of strength and security, cherish public credit. One method of preserving it is to use it as sparingly as possible. Avoid likewise the accumulation of debt, not only by shunning occasions of expense, but by vigorous exertions in time of peace to discharge the debts which unavoidable wars may have occasioned.'"

Drawing again from the wisdom of Washington, Chenery said for the payment of debts there must be revenue -- and that no taxes can be devised which are not more or less inconvenient and unpleasant. He asked: "How can we, and the Congress, justify deficit financing in the face of clear and incontrovertible logic?" He said although Washington was speaking to only about five and a half million people in fifteen or so new states, and President Ford is now speaking to over two hundred and ten million in fifty states "the precepts of a strong, independent United States of America are the same now as they were in 1796 when Washington left the nation's highest office."

In summary Chenery said "I think it is up to groups like ours (SAR and DAR) members of a hereditary society dedicated to this nation and our forebears who made this all possible, to take the lead in pointing our nation back to the principles on which it was built into the finest nation the world has ever known."

Bay graduate accepted in Master's program

Vic Frankiewicz, a 1972 graduate of St. Stanislaus High School in Bay St. Louis, has been accepted into the Five-Year Masters Program beginning in September, 1975, at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Frankiewicz qualified for admission into this special program in his junior year on the basis of his academic and professional record at M.I.T.

The Committee for Urban Studies and Planning has never previously admitted a junior to this program. Frankiewicz, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vic Frankiewicz, Sr. of Bay St. Louis, is presently in his third year at M.I.T. and is working toward a degree in Urban Studies and Planning. He will graduate in June, 1976. His present grade average is 4.9 out of a possible 5.0. Frankiewicz graduated as valedictorian of his class in 1972 from St. Stanislaus High School.

Edmonton beckons outdoor enthusiasts

EDMONTON, Alberta, Canada — There is a pleasant mixture of urban sophistication and frontier-like heartiness in this city which surprises the first-time visitor. As a result, Edmonton, the fourth largest city in Canada, is something of an oddity, its proponents contend.

On the one hand, the city is a challenge to those persons who enjoy a "vigorous" winter.

Located about 300 miles north of the Canadian-U.S. border, it is located closer to the Arctic Circle than any other major city in Canada.

Temperatures dip to an average of 50 degrees below zero during the winter months and as much as 90 inches of snow have been known to fall on the city during winter.

There are several wildlife preserves nearby in addition to national parks and the Canadian Rockies which lend a western flavor to Edmonton. Only the North Saskatchewan River decorates the otherwise flat land around the city.

On the other hand, many consider Edmonton the cultural and economic hub of western Canada.

Parks, museums, major league sports and a claim as Canada's oil capital are impressive credentials. It is the seat of government for the Alberta province.

It also is the home of Klondike Days, a mammoth celebration which some natives believe rivals the famed Mardi Gras in New Orleans.

Leo LeClerc, manager of the city's business development department, said 72 percent of the city's population of slightly more than 500,000 residents is under 40 years of age.

That appears to justify Ed-monton's title as "Canada's swingiest city," LeClerc said.

It is this mixture LeClerc hopes will lure tourists to Edmonton as an alternative to other Canadian cities.

Of particular help to LeClerc's hopes for Edmonton is the recently signed bilateral air agreement between the United States and Canada.

The agreement opens a second route connecting the United States with Anchorage, Alaska, through Edmonton. In the past, U.S. flights for Anchorage were funneled through Seattle-Tacoma International Airport in the state of Washington.

Under the agreement, Hughes Air West will service Edmonton from the western United States from connection points in Las Vegas, Nev., and Spokane, Wash.

From the East, Northwest Orient Airlines will service Edmonton from Chicago and Minneapolis-St. Paul.

"We make it no secret that we have been seeking this route for some time," LeClerc said. "And we're mighty happy now that we have it."

One of the major selling points for the route, in addition to Edmonton itself, is the nearby skiing areas of Banff and Jasper, he said.

LeClerc said these skiing areas are the most unspoiled on the North American continent.

Several of the biggest lodges in the area, notably the Jasper Park Lodge and the Chateau Lake Louise, will be open during the winter months to handle the expected influx of Americans because of the new air route.

In the past, the hotels only have been open during the late spring and summer months, catering primarily to Canadian tourists from neighboring provinces.

Area businessmen hold economic conference

The Chamber of Commerce has scheduled a presentation for area businessmen Thursday, Jan. 16 at Coast Electric Auditorium, Main Street at Highway 90 to discuss National and local economic prospects.

Mr. C. H. Anderson of the Mississippi Research and Development Center will cover major topics including the mood of the consumer, interest rates, why money is tight, shortages, economic forecasts, and employment. The program will begin at 7:30 p.m.

CHILD'S COOKBOOK

Hundreds of books on natural foods have been written for adults, but what about the child chef? Carol Getzoff didn't forget, and out of her experiences in teaching a class of children how to cook natural foods came the illustrated cookbook that reviewers have recommended with gusto for all ages. It's "The Natural Cook's First Book," and it contains the recipes used in class plus a potful of others. If Mom wants it for her daughter—or for her own use—she can get it from a bookstore or the publisher, Dodd-Mead, 79 Madison Ave., New York, N.Y. 10016 at $4.50 plus postage.

United Way reaches goal

The United Way Campaign in Hancock County has succeeded for the tenth time in reaching its $30,000 goal in the fund drive. Funds collected in the drive help to support eleven worthy agencies including the Areawide Senior Citizens Model Project, the Retired Seniors Volunteer Program, the Hancock County Emergency Relief Fund, the Hancock County Chapter of the American Red Cross, the Gulf Coast Mental Health Center, the Catholic Social Services, the Hancock County Blood Bank, the Boy Scouts, the Girl Scouts, Camp Onward for Needy Children and the U.S.O. The human services delivered by these organizations to our people are needed even more in these days of recession," said Campaign Chairman Conrad L. Mauffray, "and the success of the campaign indicates the strength of the people of Hancock County working together - The United Way."

President Norton Haas Sr., Secretary May Beyer and the Members of the Board of Directors expressed their appreciation to the contributors, and to the large number of fine workers who made the victory possible.

Colling's Corner

By E.S. Colling

The working of a human mind is beyond comprehension. It is generally known, for instance, that once you have used up every scrap of a certain article you will never be able to get any more of it. Conservationists preach this truism, day in and day out - so the average man goes blithely on, killing wild life until certain specimens of it are on the verge of extinction.

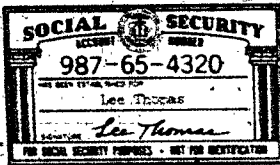

Or take something even more commonplace. We, the people, are suddenly faced with an emergency: money has become tight as a drum. Millions of people don't know where their next meal is coming from. Shrieks for public assistance rend the air. Hordes of people suddenly find that they have no jobs, no savings accounts, no resources of any kind, except perhaps minimal unemployment checks which will last a few months at best.

So what do they do? Thousands of them scrape together their last pennies and buy something that they need like a hole in the head. Such as records or tapes. For obviously they must have a recording of some tinkly tune, already dead and forgotten, instead of a week's good meals.

With few exceptions, most of the 12 to as many as 100 tunes offered in an "album," are reprints of old "dogs" which the recording company would like to get off its shelves - to make room for a bunch of newer "dogs" which the poor and unemployed simply must have. Each song on the record, of course, is rated (by the recording company!) as a "hit"; the particularly bad ones are labeled "superhits". But no matter how they are labeled, the Congress keeps shoveling out money to the creeps who buy them, and that means, of course, that YOU are the ultimate sucker!

The Better Business Bureau and some other agencies make a valiant attempt to protect the public from this kind of shenanigans, but obviously the people who fall for the record racket want to be swindled, so there isn't much that can be done about it, though the purveyors of all these "hits" and "super-hits" might be queried about false advertising. It is doubly unfortunate that so many of the buyers of these records are people who can least afford to throw their money away, and that Congress permits them to continue this silly wastefulness. Still, our Congress encourages a lot of things that ordinary commonsense would shudder at.

...about your Social Security

MEDICARE AVAILABLE

People who didn't sign up for Medicare medical insurance when they first became eligible or who have cancelled the protection once can enroll now through March 31 at any social security office, according to Charles E. Wofford, social security district manager in Gulfport.

Medicare medical insurance is offered automatically to people who reach 65 and are eligible for social security benefits - and to disabled people under 65 who have been entitled to monthly social security disability benefits for 24 consecutive months or more. Nine out of 10 people eligible are enrolled in the program, according to Wofford.

"But some people decline the protection when they're first eligible," he said. "And some sign up once and cancel later. They can enroll in the first 3 months of any year."

The medical insurance helps pay doctor bills and other medical expenses and is the voluntary part of Medicare, funded by individual premiums and Federal general revenues. The basic premium is $6.70 a month through June 1975.

"People who decline Medicare medical insurance and delay signing up for more than a year pay a higher premium," Wofford noted. "People who sign up and cancel later can re-enroll only once."

The medical insurance supplements Medicare hospital insurance. Hospital insurance is funded by social security contributions from workers, employers, and self-employed people.

"People 65 and over who are not eligible for social security benefits can apply at any social security office and get Medicare hospital insurance by paying a premium," Wofford said. "The basic premium is $36 a month through June 1975 - and they must also sign up for the medical insurance," he said.

People who have worked long enough under social security can get Medicare hospital and medical insurance for themselves and their family if they have chronic kidney disease and need a kidney transplant or dialysis.

Medicare is administered by the Social Security Administration, an agency of the U. S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. The Gulfport social security office is at 02015 Pass Road. The phone number is 1-896-1324.

Our Readers Write

The Editor:

Down through the years I have had many letters printed in this column. Each and everyone of them was in criticism of the subject at hand, and to the best of my knowledge, and my God given power of belief in honesty; even though I didn't pull any punches, and my criticism has always been point blank. I have always felt like I had a great helper in making those criticisms.

My HELPER? - Well let me fill you in.

Way back yonder in 1927 or 28, too far back to remember clearly; our teacher came to school one morning with a poem he had clipped from a magazine the night before.

To him it was so inspiring that he asked each of us to memorize it as part of our English assignment.

I believe there were ten of us in the class that year and I often wonder if any of them still remembers that piece of poetry that was only something to be memorized as part of our school work back then?

I for one had forgotten about it for twenty-five or more years, but one day as I was driving along and thinking of by gone years, it came back to me, as though I had memorized it only the day before. I have never been able to recall the name of the author.

Probably I haven't done too good a job of living up to it, but now for nearly a quarter of a century at intervals of several days, or weeks, or sometimes as long as several months, this poem comes back to me and I recite it just as I did for my English assignment nearly half a century ago.

I do hope you consider it worth sharing:

A BOO BEN ADAM, and may his tribe increase:

Awoke one night from a deep dream of peace, and saw within the moon light in his room, an angel writing in a book of gold. Exceeding peace had made Ben Adam bold; and to the presence in the room he asked - what writeth thou? The names of those the love of God has blessed the angel replied. And is mine one asked A BOO? Nay, not so replied the angel. Then write me down as one that respects his fellow man said A-BOO.

The angel wrote then vanished. The next night it came again with an awakening sound and showed the names of those the love of God had blessed;

AND LO, BEN ADAMS NAME LED ALL THE REST.

Earl Lizana
307 Carroll Ave.
Bay St. Louis

(Ed. note: the following is a letter addressed to Glen Woods, director of Water Quality Division, Mississippi Air and Water Pollution Control Board, Jackson, Miss. and reprinted in the Echo at the author's request)

Dear Sir:

Although I live in Bay St. Louis and have been surrounded by the controversy over the DuPont plant, I have not felt obligated to strongly protest the situation until now.

As an urban planner, I am aware of the quantities of money which have been spent to date on studies of future development in our area. Existing land use, proposed future land use, master development plans, etc., all made by experts and paid for with tax payer money exist in quantities and in the local planning offices. All these plans without exception designate the area around the north edge of Bay St. Louis for residential or recreational use. It seemed strange that the political groups suddenly decided that this DuPont plant was such a boon to the community that it should be located contrary to all studies to date. Still, I trusted the elected and appointed officials, believing that they would make the correct decision for the community. Furthermore I was aware of the need for jobs in our area. Although this is undoubtedly true, our anticipated percentage of those four hundred jobs most of which will be manual labor, is tiny when one compares our population with that of Harrison County.

Over the holidays, I had the opportunity to tour the Mississippi River Road between New Orleans and Baton Rouge. I had the opportunity to see exactly what the "Blue Chip" industries did to what was once one of the most beautiful areas of Louisiana.

Monsanto, Union Carbide, Shell, American Cyanamid, and dozens of others, yes, and a DuPont plant, have located along the river in the twenty years since I had last seen the area. Many of the trees have been killed, the paint has been affected on the houses, people have had to move away because of lung problems. A colored haze hangs over many areas, varying in color depending upon the plant. The dirtiest of all, and the worst polluters seem to be the ones which handle ore of various types. In handling, the dust is scattered over all.

At this point in time, having examined the DuPont plant near Reserve, La., I would like to go on record as strongly opposing the DuPont plant on the Bay. This plant should go into an industrial park area where it belongs. I don't want my home and trees covered with ore dust; I don't want to wake up at night choking. I don't want to have the paint peel from my house, or the clothes change color on the line; I don't want to have the bay dredged for a tug channel with the mud spoil dumped around the bay, I don't want ore barges and tugs polluting the bay with the oil and bilge waste that always occur with barge and tug operations.

Gentlemen, the evidence lies less than one hundred miles away. Go look at the "Blue Chip" plants on the Mississippi River. Talk to the people who haven't yet moved away. See first hand how these plants including DuPont operate. If you make this trip, look at the plants, and can come back here and let the DuPont plant locate at the head of our bay, may God forgive you.

Very truly yours
PAUL L. VEGAS

I, a concerned life long citizen of Waveland, Mississippi, am very much disturbed with reference to the building of the DuPont Plant on the Bay of Saint Louis. I do not think anyone has to be an ecologist, etc. to realize that dumping 2,142,000 gallons of waste per day, no matter what it is, into a small area as the Bay of Saint Louis will certainly pollute it. With the flow of the tide this will not only effect the Bay but also the Jordan River, Wolfe River, Bayou Delisle, Bayou Potash, Bayou LaCroix, not to mention the beach areas from Biloxi to Pearl River, etc.

To my knowledge, the public has not been informed of the following pertinent questions:

1) Why did Brunswick, Ga. turn down the DuPont Plant? (It is my understanding it was turned down because the State and City officials would not gamble with their deep well water treatment plant as it might seep into their water level table and pollute the drinking water.)

2) Why did Pensacola, Fla. win a case against DuPont for dumping waste 230 miles off their coast line?

3) I am given to understand that 302 gallons of waste per minute will go into their deep well disposal and possibly get into our water table. Yet State, County, and City officials are willing to gamble here.

It seems to me that a more thorough investigation should be made before allowing this plant to be erected.

Kindest regards.

Sincerely,
G.S. KENNEDY, JR.

Dear Editor:

May I take this opportunity to express my opinion concerning the proposed DuPont Titanium Dioxide Plant in Delisle, Mississippi, my home community.

The DuPont Corporation has already established itself as an institution that our nation recognizes as one of our country's finest assets. We have only to count their products to be reminded of all the scientific research DuPont is responsible for. Their reputation for building schools and fine communities is well known and without question.

We are appealing, to the public, to consider the reputation of DuPont for building and contributing to our society through schools, research jobs and products.

We sincerely hope that DuPont will be given the opportunity to continue growing and building. Surely, with such a reputation as DuPont's we as citizens of Delisle and surrounding area can feel safe and secure that they won't pollute anything in our land, water, or air, but continue to build and grow.

Very truly yours,

Edwin and Betty LaFontaine

Dear Sir:

What a thrill of exhilaration and satisfaction came over me as I read the two letters, one signed Mrs. Alphonse and the other, Mr. Lizana, in your issue of Jan. 9th. The two, express my feelings and viewpoint, no need to elaborate further on their enlightening letters, the truth so clearly and concisely laid bare. These people are aware of the evil trend of the times and of things to come.

God help us, if more of the grass roots, working, citizens, do not wake up as to what is slowly but surely our taking our individual rights and freedom in the name of pseudo security and benefits, which only time can prove its value.

This government largess, may ultimately prove out, like a once beautiful garment, fading away from its original use and color. May I quote J. Kerner Kahn entitled, Definition, "A deficit-spending government is one that writes checks, without having balances."

Governor Urges People Closely Follow Solons

Governor Bill Waller has urged the people of Mississippi to closely follow the activities of the 1975 Legislative Session.

The Governor said, "Everyone in government, including the Governor and legislators, needs to hear from the people during a session such as this. I urge all citizens to keep informed and to stay in contact with their elected officials."

The Governor addressed the Legislature on the opening day of the session and called for action in five "priority" areas: (1) economic development and education; (2) efficiency in State government; (3) responsive government; (4) taxpayer and consumer relief; and (5) criminal justice.

The Governor pointed out that most of his proposals would not cost the State any money. "On the other hand," he said, "several would result in saving the taxpayers a considerable sum."

Waller had told the legislators, "we're going to have to look at every dollar we appropriate. Priorities must be established and we must see how we can make government more efficient by combining agencies doing the same job."

Economic Development and Education

Waller called on the Legislature to "adopt a positive attitude" and develop tools to further economic development and to upgrade the State's educational system.

He called for increased efforts in foreign trade and small business assistance, as well as a program to establish economic development offices in each county.

Waller said that education and economic development "go hand-in-hand" as top priorities for this session.

He said that many progressive changes can be made in education without cost to the taxpayer, and he called for the passage of a resolution allowing the people to vote on a constitutional amendment which would establish a "State Lay Board of Education" rather than the present ex-officio board. He noted that Mississippi is one of only two states using this system.

The Governor said that while he agreed that the teachers should get a pay raise, the Legislature must answer two questions: "(1) where the money will come from, and (2) how the raise would be allocated."

He said that the percentage of local support for education in Mississippi is "far below the national average, so any raise given by the State must be matched by local funds."

Waller also said that any raises should be based on experience and education of teachers. "It is only fair and reasonable that our dedicated, professional teachers with years of experience and with advanced degrees be given first consideration in raises," he said.

Waller said that property tax equalization must be considered in conjunction with teacher pay raises and other improvements in education. He said, "There will be no peace in Mississippi until we have fair and equal property taxation."

The Governor urged the passage of House Bill 45, prefilled by Representative Charles Deaton of Greenwood, requiring that property be appraised on the standard of "fair and reasonable value" before January 1, 1979.

Efficiency in Government

Waller said he "strongly opposes" any tax increases in 1975. "Instead," he said, "we must work to get more for the tax dollars we are now receiving." The Governor said that the sum of available funds in the budget is too small to accommodate teacher pay raises or other "necessary new services and programs, leaving but one place to get the money for the children and for progress - namely, trimming the fat from State agencies."

The Governor also advocated a reduction of governmental spending to be effected through adopting a constitutional amendment which would reduce the number of State agencies from 167 to 50.

The Governor again called for the adoption of a unified, statewide system of highway construction to replace the present system in which an elected commissioner has authority over one-third of the State.

He proposed that the State "end the wasteful system of replacing metal car tags annually." He said that by using replaceable decals, the State could save $500,000 per year.

Responsive Government

Governor Waller offered several proposals which he said were aimed at making government more responsive and would have little or no cost to the taxpayer.

"The time has come for us to deal squarely and frankly with the basic question of having modern techniques to meet the needs of our people," he said. "The voters will accept no excuse for further inaction in this area."

The Governor called for passage of a constitutional amendment to allow voters the right to petition for referendum on issues and, here again, called for the Legislature to allow the people to vote on gubernatorial succession.

Waller said the succession and I believe it is a must for the people and efficient, modern government."

Waller also called for an open-meetings-law "extending to all levels of government, including the legislative process." He stressed that this legislation "must be meaningful and effective."

In calling for passage of an ethics law with enforcement provisions, Waller said, "We must take positive action to assure the taxpayer that the public trust will not give way to personal financial gain for public officials."

The Governor proposed changing election day from Tuesday to Saturday to allow for a larger voter turnout and he called for a constitutional amendment to set up a preferential primary system for election of delegates to national political party conventions.

Waller also said that action must be taken to deal with "the exorbitant cost of running for office." He urged the Legislature to pass measures designed to limit campaign spending. The Governor said that this would make it possible for "more working men and women to have the opportunity to run for office."

Taxpayer and consumer

Relief

The Governor called for action on proposals "designed to help the taxpayer and consumer," including:

- A $20 exemption for one vehicle per family on car tags.

- Funding of the consumer protection agency.

- Further reduction of small loan interest rates.

- Licensing of physicians' assistants to ease the effects of a shortage of doctors.

Criminal Justice

Waller called for passage of a police standards act "to assure that qualified men and women serve in police departments" and he urged the legislators to support a system of local drug agents in each county.

Waller said that housing presented the biggest need at Parchman and he called for funding of permanent facilities to house inmates. In addition, he said the penitentiary needs new health care facilities.

He pointed out that it costs almost $15 a day to keep an inmate at Parchman and,

thus, recommended an expenditure of the work release program.

Waller also called for the establishment of a pilot program for diagnostic centers for conducting pre-sentence investigations of convicted felons.

The Governor urged the

lawmakers to "get to work

immediately on a positive program to improve the quality of life for our people."

He challenged the legislators to finish their work in 45 days, instead of the authorized 90,

an act which would save a quarter million dollars in expenses and mileage of legislators alone.

In concluding his fourth consecutive set of legislative proposals, the Governor said:

"finally, let me make one thing certain - the voters are closely watching the activities of this session.

"Let us put aside personalities and former conflicts, and work hard for the people.

"They deserve it - and in 1975 they must have it."

Anti-pollution group schedules meeting

The Jourdan River Anti-Pollution and Improvement Association will hold its regular meeting, Saturday, Jan. 18 at 2 p.m. at Scafile's Wheel Inn Cafe, Highway 90. Refreshments will be served.

Pass designation spoiled by storm

Heavy rains and wind forced ceremonies designating Pass Christian a bicentennial city indoors Friday, and only a disappointingly small crowd of about 30 persons who braved the weather, witnessed U.S. Congressman Trent Lott present the bicentennial flag to Pass Christian Mayor Steve Saucier.

"The American form of government is in jeopardy," Lott said in a short five-minute presentation speech, "and it will be challenged again unless the people rededicate themselves to make the republic last another 200 years." Lott made frequent references to the storm outside and at one point reminded his audience of that other storm, Hurricane Camille. "The people of Pass Christian," he said, "show that they have the same fighting spirits that our forefathers had, rebels though they were."

Saucier, upon receiving the flag, said it's time "to rekindle the spirit of patriotism." "Let's fix what's bad, and move ahead with what is right," he added. Project manager of the state bicentennial committee, Anne Parkman, and the Pass Christian bicentennial committee chairman, E. Davis McCutcheon, were also present at the ceremony.

A small reception was held in the city library following the event. City officials said after the presentation ceremony that a crowd of more than 200, mostly schoolchildren, had been expected. The weather, however, prevented their attendance.

Manpower Conference Slated For February

"Manpower: Everybody's Business" is to be the theme of a Governor's Manpower Conference February 5 in Jackson.

Dr. Milton Baxter, executive director, Governor's Office of Education and Training, in coordination with Mr. John Bonner, director, Jackson Manpower Consortium, announced plans for the event.

"It's purpose," Dr. Baxter said, "will be to discuss employment and the labor market in Mississippi, as well as labor trends nationwide and throughout the Southeast."

Mr. Bonner said the meeting will be conducted on an invitational basis, with approximately 350 people, representing a wide range of organizations interested in manpower programs and employment, expected to attend sessions to be held at the Coliseum Ramada Inn.

Governor Waller will extend the official welcome and will outline general purposes of the conference, and Dr. Baxter will preside.

Dr. Baxter said topics for the agenda will include discussion of the new national Comprehensive Employment Training Act, the role of local manpower agencies in implementing the act, citizen involvement and the role of sponsoring agencies. He said a full slate of speakers is being finalized and will be announced within a few days.

Taxpayers Urged To Seek Advice

"Pre-filed bills, such as House Bill 45 and House Concurrent Resolution No. 7, dealing with means of raising taxes at the local level make it of utmost importance that every Mississippi property owner understands the practical application of all bills to be taken up in the Mississippi legislature in the weeks ahead," Sam Alford, president of the Mississippi Association of Supervisors, said in Jackson Thursday.

"Probably about the most constructive thing we can do as Supervisors," Alford said, "is to urge all property owners regardless of how much or what kind of real property they own to go to their county tax assessor and ask what the various proposals will do to their tax bill, then and only will they know who the vested interest people are that are promoting equalization when the word should be re-evaluation."

"As a statewide association of county elected officials who determine how county monies are spent, we realize more money is needed for educational and other purposes," he said, "but unless the people know what will happen to their tax bills under the various proposals, and unless they have the opportunity of voting on this vital issue, some very serious misunderstandings and mistakes can occur, as has happened in other legislation that has been promoted by the same people. Local people have all the taxes they can pay."

The supervisors have gone on record recently in support of a system of property classification as opposed to an across-the-board tax raise. They also have supported the principle of the matter being taken to the people through a STATEWIDE REFERENDUM.

"Only by a vote of the people," Alford said, "can a fair and equitable tax system be enacted. Other means of revising Mississippi tax laws would be arbitrary and inequitable in our opinion."

Alford said that it is questionable whether or not the people can live with the proposed formulas, and they are entitled to vote on the issue.

Otherwise it will be out and out state-dictated tax increases without the people having a voice in what is done. I just don't believe Mississippi people are yet ready to give up local control over something as important as the taxes they pay!" Alford said.

DESTROYER NAMED FOR SON — Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Elliot, of Thomaston, Maine, survey the powerful new destroyer being named for their son, the late Lt. Commander Arthur James (Jack) Elliot II, who was killed in Vietnam in 1968. Elliot, the fifth ship in a series of DD-963 advanced destroyers being built for the Navy by Ingalls Shipbuilding division of Litton Industries, will be christened in ceremonies at the shipyard in Pascagoula, Miss. Saturday. It is the first ship of the new destroyer series to be named for a Naval hero of the Vietnam War.

The Elliot To Be Christened Sat.

The fifth ship in a series of advanced class DD-963 destroyers in production at Ingalls Shipbuilding division of Litton Industries, will be named Saturday for Lt. Camdr. Arthur James (Jack) Elliot, a naval hero of the Vietnam War. The Elliot, DD-967, will be christened in ceremonies at the shipyard here.

Designed by Ingalls primarily for tracking hostile submarines and for anti-submarine warfare, the ships of the DD-963 class are the first new destroyers built for the Navy since the late 1950s. Measuring 563-feet long, with a full load displacement of 7,800 tons, they are almost twice the size of the largest destroyers now in service.

Ingalls has total responsibility for the design, production and logistic support for the 30 ships of the new series. With design and engineering work for all 30 ships virtually complete, 14 of the advanced destroyers are now in various stages of production. The first five ships, including the Elliot, have been launched and are currently in continued outfitting prior to delivery to the Navy.

The destroyers are built for high speed and maneuverability, and are capable of carrying a formidable array of weapons and electronic equipment. They are powered by gas turbines, the first application of jet engines for a major U.S. Navy combat ship. The destroyers' four engines develop more than 20,000 horsepower each to drive the ships at speeds in excess of 30 knots. Ingalls designed the ships with gas turbine engines because they are more compact and lighter than steam turbines, are easier to maintain and automate, are more quickly repaired or replaced, and can be started cold in only a few minutes rather than the hour or more needed for steam plants.

The destroyers have controllable, reversible pitch propellers, giving the ships a high degree of maneuverability. Besides controlling direction of the ship, the pitch of the propellers can be tuned to achieve maximum efficiency for long-range cruising, or for maximum silence during anti-submarine warfare missions. During normal operations the destroyers may cruise on two engines, going to three and then to four for greater speeds.

The DD-967 is the first ship of the new destroyer series to be named for a Vietnam hero. Elliot, as a Naval Reserve officer, volunteered for Vietnam duty to command a squadron of "riverine" warfare forces assigned along the Mekong River area leading to Saigon. His squadron of small river craft and patrol boats had achieved an outstanding record before he was killed in December, 1968 while leading his forces against the enemy.

Elliot was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Elliot of Thomaston, Maine. His mother will serve as sponsor of the ship. His brothers' wives, Mrs. John A. Elliot, also of Thomaston; and Mrs. George Elliot, of Nashville, Tenn., will serve as matrons of honor.

Principal speaker for the christening of the Elliot will be Rear Admiral Roy F. Hoffman, Commander of the Navy's Mine Warfare Force. Other speakers will be Ned J. Marandino, Senior Vice President of Litton Industries and President of Ingalls Shipbuilding; Rear Admiral Donald P. Hall, Deputy Commander, Fleet Support Directorate, Naval Sea Systems Command; and Captain C. S. Davis, Jr., Supervisor of Shipbuilding, Pascagoula.

Park Comm. Enjoys Record Year

We could not have asked for any greater accomplishment in new park development as the words expressed by William M. Barnett, State Park Director, when interviewed recently about the achievements of the Mississippi Park Commission in 1974. "Actually," Barnett stated, "We started out the year with one major goal - the continued improvement of our state park system under our 25 million dollar development program, and we stuck to our guns." The end result summarized the state park head is we have a lot we can now boast about.

In reflecting back on the Park Commission's previous year accomplishments Barnett noted with pride two major park construction events which were the highlights of new recreational development to the Mississippi Park Commission - the beginning development of the Buccaneer State Park on the Gulf Coast near Waveland and the groundbreaking of the Living Historical Plantation near Greenwood. "The total construction cost for these new tourist areas will be 5 million dollars," Barnett stated, but he hastened to point out that these major tourist attractions will play a major role in support to our state's growing economy once they are completed.

"Mississippians have every reason to be proud of their state parks and the job they are doing in providing for our state's tourism needs," the Park Director exclaimed.

Demand for new areas has expanded at a much greater rate, and according to Barnett the state parks total use factor last year reached a new all time high of nearly 4 million. Nearly 1.1 million of these visitors were from out of state.

"The Park Commission is working harder today than ever before on our 25 million dollar development program," Barnett said. "Development of many important facilities such as: group camps; modern family cabins, new campgrounds with convenient utility hookups, group camp cafeterias, etc. - all geared toward generating more tourist dollars for our state economy are rapidly moving forward completion throughout our park system, and many of these much needed new facilities will be ready for public use this year."

locate in the area because of the economic situation.

His answer was necessitated by statements made by DuPont's chairman of the board, Irvin S. Shapiro, who, at a December 10 meeting of the Security Analysts of San Francisco, said that if the government policy dealing with the recession and inflation is less than adequate DuPont "will require a reexamination" of its "current capital spending program." Sheehy added that Shapiro did say DuPont still planned to go ahead with the Mississippi Coast plant site.

"There are financial difficulties," said Sheehy. "Everyone knows that the textile, automotive, and constructive industries are down." But he continued, "This shows no misgivings with the Mississippi plant site. We still think it's a very fine plant site."

He said that the company does not have the funds to finance all the projects its different departments bring in. "But," he added, "if we receive the permits for the DeLisle site, we'll very promptly go to the executive and finance committee." When asked of his chances to get the spending approved, Sheehy said the chances were very good. He pointed out as evidence that DuPont plans to go ahead with construction because it authorized an additional $8 million for ordering long delivery and additional sitework.

Sheehy said that DuPont's income of $119 million in the fourth quarter of 1974 represents a 17 percent drop from the same period in 1973.

News From Parchman

Delta State University and the Mississippi State Penitentiary, two neighboring, but somewhat different type state institutions have joined forces in the field of criminal justice beginning this semester.

Criminal Justice Internship, a three hour course will begin during the spring semester under the guidance of Jim Armishaw and the head of the sociology department Dr. Irby Ellis.

Lonnie Herring, Training Director at Parchman will be the chief instructor during most of the lectures.

The course will consist of a 48 hour training program (orientation) and will be divided into three hour classes for three nights a week for three weeks. There also will be three 8 hour classes on consecutive Saturdays that will be held at the Security Building on the prison grounds.

The orientation course will instruct those who are attending how to be a correctional officer such as the ones employed at Parchman. Upon completion of this, the student will begin part time work at the penitentiary doing this type work, of course being paid at the same rate as a regular officer. "We want to do something for the surrounding community because we are interested in what goes on around here," said Herring. "This course will be open to all students interested in criminal justice and we hope from a practical standpoint that this program will give them insight into law enforcement."

Jim Armishaw of Delta State said that both institutions, Delta State and the Mississippi State Penitentiary complemented each other in a satisfactory manner. "This new course will not only benefit Delta State, but it will shine a light on Parchman and the entire Delta community."

"No student will be working more than 24 hours a week and no less than 16," according to Herring. We feel like that is all the work that a full time college student will be able to handle," Herring also said that the course will also be open to students who are having money problems and are in need of a job, but emphasized that all students would have to meet and pass the qualifications of the training program.

Herring, who will be the primary instructor, explained how the college students would be graded. "Their attitudes, notebooks, and firearm procedures will make up a large portion of their grade. They must also pass a final examination with a grade of 75 or better if they are to work as correctional officers."

"While the student is working, we will evaluate this performance every 30 days and turn our findings over to Armishaw and his staff. At the end of the semester, each student will turn in a term paper in order to receive credit for this course," stated Herring.

Herring also added, "When school is out, the course will be completed. Right now we are hoping that if our budget allows, (depending upon the state legislature) that those students wishing to remain working for us will be able to do so."

The Criminal Justice Internship program will be a regular course from now on according to Armishaw. "This new program is a joint effort from both institutions and available to the students without the full cooperation from the Sociology Department under Dr. Irby Ellis, Delta State University, and the Mississippi State Penitentiary."

Two more new temporary housing units are scheduled to be opened in mid January according to Deputy Superintendent Bob Streif. These new housing units will help to alleviate the overcrowded conditions that have become synonymous with the mentioning of Parchman. Each housing unit will facilitate 100 prisoners. The units, which are prefabricated, are a big improvement in housing conditions here. These units will serve the needs of the prisoner for approximately two to five years and then will be used as warehouses following the completion of the planned 192 man medium security unit.

The first of these new temporary housing units was opened just prior to Christmas with the Governor and attending the opening.

mended that the bus drivers be included on the drills because they are a major factor if dismissal of the schools becomes necessary.

In other business the board voted to get an estimate for the renovation of Hancock North Central School gym. Some members of the board complained that action on this issue had been delayed for too long and that the work on the gym should be started immediately. The board voted to send a letter to the principal J. A. O'Neal instructing him to get a bid and a written outline of the work required to be submitted to the board.

"This issue was only done verbally before and that's why nothing has been done about it," said Board Member Eric Larsen. "That's the reason we need to send out these letters to make sure that these things are followed up."

The board also gave its consent to a motion that Superintendent McCarty attend the Manpower Conference in Jackson. The conference will be held Feb. 5 and will concern economic and educational issues.

The keeping of the board's minutes was also a topic of discussion Tuesday. Gex suggested that present procedure be modified to include in the minutes those topics which were discussed but upon which no action was taken. The board accepted Gex's suggestion and will now include tabular items in the minutes.

The March of Dimes has sponsored a National Committee on Perinatal Health, to upgrade the quality of maternal, fetal, and newborn health services. Members are obstetricians, pediatricians and family practitioners.

Garden Club encourages garden therapy

The Pass Christian Garden Club met Thursday at the Trinity Parish House with guest speaker Mrs. D. Lyle Robertson of Gulfport.

Bazaar Chairman, Mrs. Leland Littell, reported that the bazaar had not done as well as in past years due to weather and other scheduled activities in the area but it was successful. Mrs. Littell also reported that she has applications to register century old trees in the City and urged all members to report any such trees so they can be registered.

Miss Adele Bielenberg reported for the Garden Therapy Committee. During Christmas time children of the fifth and sixth grades of St. Paul's school made approximately 180 gifts such as wastebaskets, candy jars, and many such items. These gifts were all taken to the Miramar Nursing home by the children and presented to the patients in the home where they participated in Christmas activities.

Mrs. William Curren introduced the speaker, Mrs. D.

Lyle Robertson, who spoke on Garden Therapy. Garden Therapy is an aid that provides an opportunity for the aged, invalid, or handicapped to participate in gardening.

Mrs. Robertson told of working with the Youth Corps in Gulfport and Senior Citizens in the County Home and patients in the Veteran's Hospital. Working with the children in the Harrison County School for Exceptional Children is a very rewarding experience, just to encourage them to work with one plant and feel that it is their own. Talent and ingenuity are the main ingredients in working with the handicapped for the garden therapist.

Coffee and refreshments were served by the hostesses: Mrs. Leland Littell and Dr. Celestine Lindstraedter, assisted by Mesdames: Parnell McKay, Leon Morlas, Phyllis Taylor and James McQueen.

Pass team holds "Godfather night"

TO PLACE A CLASSIFIED, CALL 467-5473 AND ASK FOR ROSEMARY

Dinners range from $1.75 to $2.25 with a child's plate costing 75 cents. An oyster bar will also be available. Cost of the dance will be $2 per couple.

Handcrafters meet

Clermont Harbor Handcrafters Club met January 6 in Gulf National Bank's Civic Room with Mrs. Maurice George, president, conducting the business session.

The weather has a lot to do with fishing and the tides are just as important. Did you know that falling tides are best for soft crabbing and that flounders are speared on a rising tide. Flounders go out when the tide is falling and come in when it is rising. Bass are also caught best when there is a falling tide. When the tide is rising, especially in local rivers and bayous, you might as well stay home. Just the opposite for speckles. They are caught better on a rising tide. Of course there are exceptions to all rules.

Perch are caught on the fly rod. But the old perch pole and line with earth worms or small pieces of shrimp pay off when the perch are spawning. Fishing for them on the bottom produces best results. The best time to catch them this way is in the spring of the year.

Artificial baits can be used the year around. But one has to know which kind of baits to use, top or underwater lures. Old timers who do fly fishing or casting can give you a few pointers on what type of lures are best.

As for hunting, it is learned by experience and practice. The more practice, the more perfect one gets. Regarding dove hunting, duck hunting, or rabbit hunting there is a lot to knowing how for the game must be. Shooting them on the posse is easy. In other words while they are still.

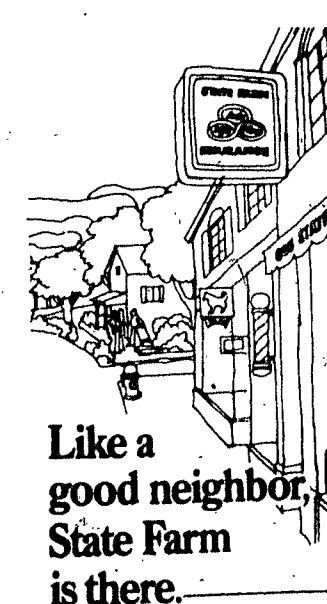

The snipe season is now open, as well as the quail season. It is best to shoot them on the rise as they level off. Snipe and quail are fast flying birds and a hard target to hit. The same thing is true for woodcock.

Snipe and woodcock are found mostly in wet meadows, marshes and bogs. They probe in mud and soft earth with their long bills. Insects, worms, crustaceans and snails make up their diet. They fly low and erratically.

Did you know that Otter eat plenty of fish? They are numerous in our local streams and are seen by fishermen quite often.

Frogs can be caught when using a fly rod with a popping bug. Don't try to hook them. Cast the bug beyond them. Retrieve forward. When the bug gets even with their eye, they will strike it like a bass, and it is a hard fighter when hooked. This is not the baloney! If you don't believe me, ask August Rauxet, John Scaife, or Alden Mauffrey. They have caught them this way.

Did you know it is easier to skin a goose, or a Poule deau than to pluck it? Ducks are best when plucked. To cook poule deau, boil first in crab boil. It takes out the wild taste.

Like a good neighbor, State Farm is there.

rabbit or other game can be baked by wrapping it in clay, putting it in a wood or charcoal fire made in the ground, and covering it with hot ashes. Break off clay and there it is.

Something else. Did you know that an egg can be hard boiled without using water? Take a pocket knife, punch a little hole in the shell, part hot ashes and stand it upright.

When the steam stops, it will be hard boiled. Better have a dozen for first try. This is a Boy Scout trick.

MYSTIC CARNIVAL—On Saturday, January 25, the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club Ladies Auxiliary will sponsor a Mystic Carnival—a fun affair re-enacting some of the old time carnival customs.

Cloak and dagger secrecy will shroud the identity of His Royal Majesty, the Mystic King, and his Dukes until the night of the 25th. Selection of Her Royal Mystic Queen and her Maids will be a unique surprise for all to witness.

Mrs. Edward J. Brennan is the Ladies Auxiliary Mystic Carnival Chairman, with co-chairman Mrs. George Greenfield and Mrs. F.D. Parrish. With their many assistants they are planning a great evening of entertainment.

Ray Gordon is honorary chairman of the Mystic Carnival Court Committee. Pete Chapman will be narrator.

The fun is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. The drawing of the Ladies Royal Court will take place in the ball room at 8:15 p.m.

JUNIOR MID-WINTERS—Fairhope Yacht Club will host the first annual Junior Flying Scot Mid-Winter Regatta. All skippers and crews must be between the ages of 12 and 21. The races will take place January 18-19 on Mobile Bay.

Women send poppies

VFW Ladies Auxiliary to Post 3253, Bay St. Louis, met January 9 at the VFW home with Mrs. Harris Boudreaux, president, conducting the business session.

It was noted that all VFW Posts had been notified that poppies left from Memorial Day sales would be sent to Eaton Rapids, Mich., to decorate a float for the National Home's golden anniversary parade.

Monthly activities of the group included sending cards to hospitalized members and visiting veterans hospitals.

The next meeting was scheduled for 8 p.m. February 13 at the VFW home, 136 Blaize Avenue.

Pony club holds triple feature

The Gold Coast Pony Club will sponsor a triple feature movie presentation Saturday at 7 p.m. at the Pass Christian Yacht Club. The three films are "Showing Hunters and Jumpers," "Defects Related To Unsoundness in Horses," and "Polo."

Dr. James E. Byrd, a local authority on polo, will be present to answer any questions on the game of polo.

It is hard writing this column each week. Give me what you catch or kill. I'm not a mind reader. Don't say why don't you put me in your column? Give me the dope and it will be there, even your picture in Sportsman of the week. Address me care of the Echo.

Heard from John L. Isreal at the Kilt after some time. Not fishing now but hopes to start soon. The fish are missing you, John. Thanks for the Xmas card.

Don't cuss your fishing tackle. Take a little time and keep it in order. A hanging reel or a bad line loses lots of fish. Ever think of that?

Forget Stone loss

Necaise, Bradley prepare BHS for Pearl River

Bay High Tiger Tom Barrett drives over the heads of the defending Stone Co. Tomcats Tuesday night at Bay High for two points as a group of Stone County players stand flat footed. Barrett ended with 12 points for the night as the Tigers fell to Stone 68-61.

The Bay High Tigers, eventually overcome by the size and strength of the physically larger Stone County Tomcats Tuesday night, will host Pearl River Central High School tonight. Though the Tigers came back from a 32-36 deficit at halftime against Stone to even the game 50-50 early in the fourth period, a series of critical turnovers stalled what began as a late game challenge to the stronger Tomcats, as the Tigers slipped to their first district loss 68-61. The Tigers applying an aggressive full court defense also forced a number of Stone turnovers that turned into six quick unchallenged points for the Tigers and sparked a brief swing of the pendulum in the Tigers' favor early in the fourth period.

Just as quickly though the Tomcats came back, maintaining their court poise and continuing inside domination that forced the Tigers to take the outside shot most of the night.

For the Tigers and coach Mike Necaise it was another night of frustration for the team which has only played three teams in its own classification in 14 games.

Out of 14 games the Tigers have played 11 AA teams. The loss Tuesday dropped the Tiger record to 7-7.

Allison Farve led the Tiger Bench with 23 points followed by Clarence Hargett with 14 and Tom Barrett with 12.

Peter Saia led Stone with 18 points followed by Luther Monroe with 17 and Norman Armstrong with 15.

In the girls game Tuesday, the Tigerettes suffered their fourth loss of the season 43-35. The Tigerettes are now 11-4.

Both the Tigers and Tigerettes will play Thursday night as Bay High hosts Pearl River Central High School.

"All we really need is a big one," Necaise said following the Tiger's loss to Stone. "Our size is hurting us most, but we'll have the big boys next year with 6-4 Michael Thompson, now a ninth grader at Bay Junior High."

Speaking of the Tigerette's loss, Bradley laid the blame on the team's inability the past three games to hit the basket.

"We're hustling good, but we need to get more scoring again," Bradley said.

The Tigerette's coach said the team relied on its quick guards and speed to capitalize on turnovers and win games.

Tiger Clarence Hargett huddles the ball close to his body after taking down a rebound against the Stone County Tomcats Tuesday at Bay High School. Although the Tigers were physically smaller than the Tomcats they gave Stone all the ball game that they wanted. Hargett had 14 points for the night.

Band participates in clinic

Twelve students representing the Bay Sr. High School Band participated in the Annual Gulf Coast Band Clinic January 10-11. These students auditioned for one of three bands at the clinic. Those students making the First Band were Carolyn Ferrell, Melinda Smith, Peggy Smith, Anthony Sones, and Owen Williams. Students making the Second Band were Don Rutledge and Debbie Wilson. Students in the Third Band were Ralph Ainsworth, Ember Ferrell, Debbie Langenbacker, Jules Simms, and Yun Usher. This was the largest number of band students Bay High Band has had to participate in any one band clinic.

Bay High Band is presently preparing for the heavy schedule facing them this semester which includes State Band Festival in April. Bay High Band is under the direction of Joe Cacibauda.

Red Rebels crush Long Beach

The Harrison Central Red Rebels handed Long Beach two losses Tuesday night in Long Beach as the Bearcats fell 93-56 and the Bearkittens 67-44.

Jimmy Nelson was leading scorer for the Bearcats in their losing cause with 11 points. O. Evans led Harrison Central with 14. The Red Rebels also had three other players in double figures for the night.

Long Beach, which was never in the game with the Rebels, took an early 6-2 lead but saw that quickly disappear as Harrison Central raced to a 47-19 halftime advantage.

The Red Rebels then had little trouble putting the game away for keeps in the final half of play.

In the girls' game, Cathy Pierocich led the Bearkittens with 16 points while Kathy Faulk led Harrison Central with 16 also.

Long Beach will next play St. Martin away Friday beginning at 5:45 p.m.

Passing situation

Linda Ladner (25) of Long Beach starts a fast break by passing over the outstretched arms of a Harrison Central player Tuesday night. The two points the Bearcats got at the end of the play were not enough as the Red Rebels breezed to a 67-44 win.
